President Mohamud was elected president of Somalia in 2012, and is leading the first constitutional government of Somalia in 20 years. Listed by Time magazine as one of the 100 most influential people in the world, he has been a civic and political activist, a university professor and dean and is the founder and chairman of the Peace and Development Party.

Born in the central Hiran region in 1955, President Mohamud studied engineering at Somali National University and became a lecturer there in 1981. Five years later he went to India to study, obtaining an MBA from Bhopal University. He stayed in Somalia during the civil war, working as a consultant with non-governmental groups, U.N. organizations and on several peace initiatives. In 1999, he helped start Simad University and was its dean for 10 years. He founded the Peace and Development Party in 2011 and was elected a member of parliament 2012.

Program

President Mohamud's talk in the Great Hall Meeting Room on the first floor of The Ohio Union at Ohio State University is open to the public, but registration is required for admittance and space is limited.

Co-sponsored by the John Glenn School of Public Affairs, the Mershon Center for International Security Studies, the Office of International Affairs, the Center for African Studies, and the Columbus Council on World Affairs.
